

Is it safe to swim?

Throughout the summer, the Halton Regional Health Department tests the water at bathing areas in Burlington, Milton, Oakville and Halton Hills. Here are the answers to some commonly asked questions about this testing program. For more information, feel free to call at one of the numbers listed below.

What is the water being tested for?

Beach water is tested for a type of bacteria called faecal coliform. These microscopic, living organisms are found in the intestine of animals and humans. They don't usually cause illness themselves, but when they're present in large numbers, other harmful types of bacteria could also be in the water.

When is the water not safe for swimming?

Almost all lakes and streams in Southern Ontario contain some faecal coliform bacteria.

However, when more than 200 faecal coliform are found in a 100 ml sample of water, the swimming area is considered unsafe for bathing. At levels greater than 200, bathers have an increased chance of getting cold and flu-like illnesses, eye and ear infections.

How do faecal coliform get into the water?

In urban areas, faecal coliform bacteria can come from storm sewer run-off; geese and seagulls; and sometimes sewage treatment plants. In rural areas, the sources of faecal coliform can be faulty septic tank systems, livestock and wildlife.
