Home is where the art is for Mesure

The Christmas season calls to the hearth and gathers us to homes of our loved ones. For artist Michael Mesure, historical Ontario homes tell many tales of such celebrations.

Mesure captures the detailed workmanship of 19th century architecture in watercolors. He studies the elegant lines and rustic brick, the ornate trim and homely touches of the sturdy heritage home. His paintings create a "remember when" mood.

Mesure, now in the midst of a move to a Victorian home in Erin village, is exhibiting work at the Halton Hills Cultural Centre Gallery throughout the month of December.

Mesure has travelled throughout Europe and the Middle East where he was inspired by varied forms of architecture. Upon returning home, Mesure realized Ontario heritage homes have much to offer as a focus of his talent. He receives commissions to paint historical homes which will be unique only to its owner.

At the Gallery

Although the artist has been approached to reproduce his work, he hasn't so far, saying he believes in the truism of art.

The multi-talented Mesure has owned and operated a prominent gallery featuring only Canadian artists. As a framer his style reflects the mood of the piece presented. His photography explores directions in line and shadow and his personal interest in the rescue and study of night migratory birds has led him to collect and illustrate over 100 species. His first complete work will be unveiled at his showing at the Gallery.

Acton Rotarian Doug Fread wheeled the cart around the Legion Hall Nov. 26 to serve appreciative seniors at their annual dinner.
