Body found

The body of a woman found Tuesday night at the bottom of a cliff in Rattlesnake Conservation Area in Milton has been identified as Gail Roche, 32, of Hamilton. She was a medical student at McMaster University, police said. While they do not suspect foul play in the death, police do not yet know how the woman died. An autopsy was to be performed sometime Friday or Saturday. Police are continuing their investigation into the incident, and are interviewing people who may have known what Roche was doing during the days before her death. She was not married and had no children, police said.

Black van sighting

Children in Halton Hills continue to believe someone in a black van is trying to abduct them, but investigations have found there is "no substance" to any of the reports so far, police said. Four children from George Kennedy School told police Wednesday that they saw a black van near the school. Some of the children said the driver of the van was waving a gun and trying to entice them into the van, while other children said the man put on a mask and went into a house. The children recorded the licence of the van, and when police investigated they found the van belonged to a Glen Williams business, and it had not been out at that time, police said.

A school safety officer went to the school Thursday to tell children not every black van they see is someone out to abduct them, police said. While children should always remain cautious and stay away from strangers, they appear to be "reading more into it than is there" police said. This is the fourth report police have received since the beginning of January.

Sheets stolen

Five sets of bedsheets valued at $190 were taken from the storeroom at Bargain Harold's Wednesday. According to police, an employee entered the storeroom and saw a woman, around 30, wearing a "nasty boy" hat. The woman left when she saw the employee, running out of the store into a waiting car. A man and a woman were in the four door black compact car, police said.

Stereo stolen

A car stereo was stolen from a car parked in the lot behind the Georgetown Legion on Mill St. The stereo was removed sometime between 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and was valued at $250, police said.

Cash stolen

Money was taken from a dresser in a bedroom on Raylawn Cres., in Georgetown sometime between Wednesday, Jan. 29 and Thursday morning. The $475 disappeared with no sign of break and enter, police said.

Domestic assault

An Acton resident has been charged with assault and breach of probation after an incident with his common law wife Sunday night, police said.

Girl assaulted

Monday police charged a man with assaulting a 12 year old girl. The girl reported the incident, which happened Jan. 19 to her school, which then asked the Children's Aid Society to become involved, police said.
