Grandma's birthday party to aid Open Door Drop-In Grandma Gooding is celebrating her 75th birthday party and everyone is invited.

Students from Georgetown District High School are organizing another benefit evening in aid of the Open Door Youth Drop-in Centre by celebrating "Grandma Gooding's 75th birthday."

With the success of last year's Wayne and Wendy's Wedding, and the murder mystery dinner the year before, the students decided to carry on the tradition and throw a big bash for sweet old Grandma.

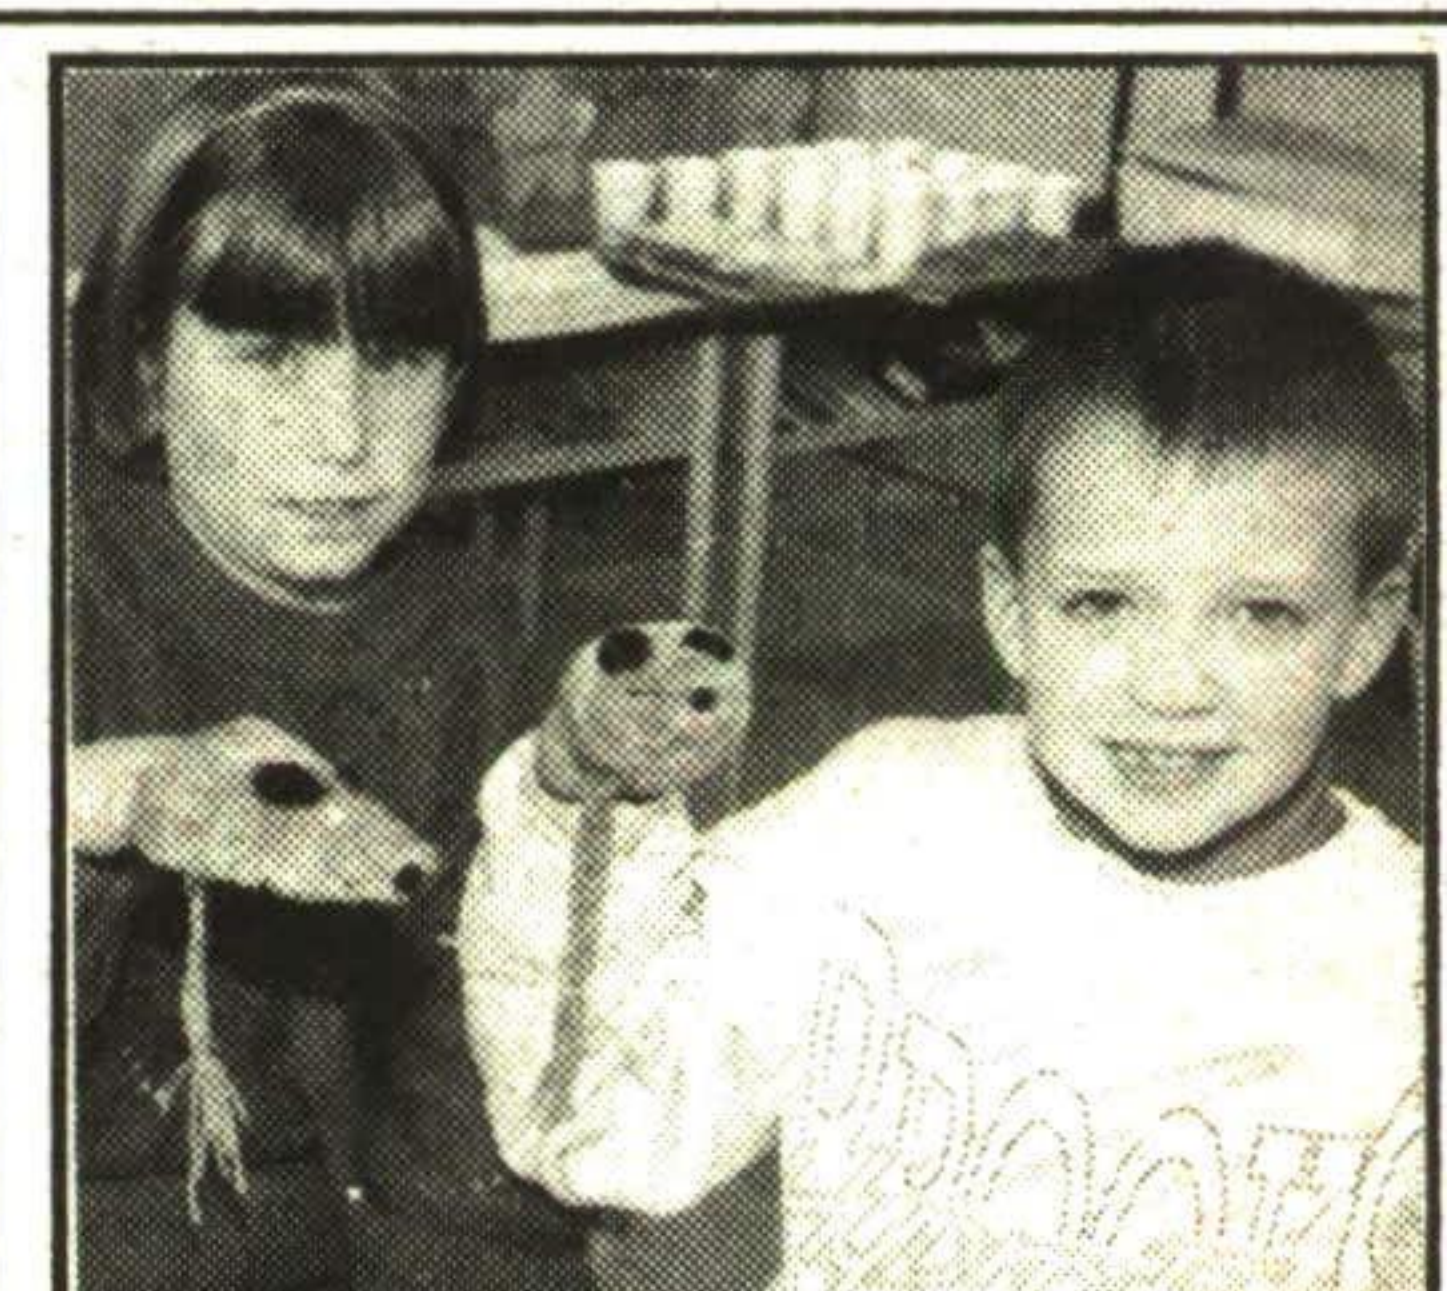

All the organization is being done while Grandma is soaking up a few rays in Florida, so she doesn't know a thing about it. It's supposed to be a surprise and the dear old lady will be totally surprised, so let's keep it a secret.

Of course, there's no telling how Grandma will react, so be prepared for anything. And party-goers are encouraged to take part in the fun.

The party will be held at Jack Tanner's Table, Acton, Feb. 20, with cocktails at 6:30 and the festivities beginning at 7:30 p.m. The evening includes dinner with dancing to follow. Tickets are $30 per person and are available from Sue McNally at 877-0546.

This fundraising event will enable the Open Door to continue to offer the teen drop-in centre and Young Parents Program located at St. George's Anglican Church, Georgetown.

Kerri Becker and Brendan Dyelle, both 7, enjoy making mouse puppets during the Electives program at Glen Williams Public School on Wednesday.
