Respect for Law

Georgetown Optimists held their annual "Respect for Law" dinner, Tuesday night (May 12) at the Optimist Hall, honoring police officers and civilians for their outstanding achievements in upholding the law. At right, among the recipients were Halton Regional Police officers, Acting Sgt. Marty Power, for his work in crime prevention and Const. Al Stennett for his courage in pursuing a suspected bank robber, who was armed and fired at him. On hand for the presentations were (from left) Halton Regional Chairman Pete Pomeroy, Acting Sgt. Marty Power, Supt. Rick Dawson, Const. Al Stennett and Mayor Russ Miller. Two Halton Hills civilians, Bruce Lewis and Bruno Martina, were also recognized for aiding police in the apprehension of a young offender by lending police their vehicle and car phone. Both Lewis and Martina were unable to attend to receive their award. Below, Georgetown Optimist Peter Welling (left) had a pleasant surprise Tuesday night (May 12) at the Respect for Law dinner when Optimist John Horning presented him with a Life Member pin, in recognition of his many years of work in the club.
