Prisoners escape from Maplehurst

Halton police say it's unlikely two prisoners who escaped from Maplehurst Correctional Centre Nov. 20 are still in this area.

"They wouldn't stick around," said Detective Constable Kevin McCart who is investigating the case.

Three convicts considered dangerous slipped through a vent in the roof of the medium-security jail at about 1 p.m.

One of the prisoners, Andrew Bartlett, 19, is back in custody after being picked up by police Nov. 28 on a highway near London.

Donald Francoere, 33, previously of Montreal and Peter White, 24, known to visit locations in Toronto and Brampton, are still at large.

Francoere was serving time for robbery, possession of stolen property, and attempt to obstruct justice, while White was convicted of mischief and break and enter.

Search dogs tracked the convicts to a nearby industrial area where police believe they discarded their prison clothes and stole a green 1990 Ford pick-up truck bearing licence plate VC3 307.

Both men missing are white. Francoere is also described as 5'8", 184 pounds, with short, light brown hair and blue eyes.

White is 5'10", 184 pounds, with short, light-colored hair and green eyes.

Anyone with information is asked to contact Detective Sergeant Keith Woudstra at 878-5511, ext. 2115.
