

INTELLIGENT INVESTING

with
CARY LEON

Best of Both Worlds

Many investors have approached me recently asking "How can I maintain or increase the income my investments are producing while allowing for the opportunity of growth of capital". One method I have found to be particularly attractive over the years has been to utilize the tax savings provided by "the Canadian Dividend Tax Credit". By investing in the common stocks of Blue Chip, high dividend paying Canadian Companies, investors can receive regular cash dividend payments (usually quarterly), taxed at a much lower rate than interest payments while allowing themselves to participate in the growth of the companies and adding to their total return.

Some of the more attractive opportunities available in Canada today include, B.C. Gas at $14.625 with a dividend of $.90 for a pre-tax yield of 6.15%, BCE Inc at $44.25 with a dividend of 5.97%, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce at $27.75 with a dividend of $1.32 for a pre-tax yield of 4.76%, Interprovincial Pipelines at $26.875 with a dividend of $2.00 for a pre-tax yield of 7.44%, Transalta Utilities at $13.75 with a dividend of $.98 for a pre-tax yield of 7.13% and Alberta Telephone at $13 with a dividend of $.92 for a pre-tax yield of 7.08%.

All of these companies are Blue Chip, many of them are Utility companies and they all have strong balance sheets.

Investing in common stocks is not for everyone. But for those interested in regular income with favourable tax treatment and an opportunity to grow their capital, dividend paying, Blue Chip, Common Stocks offer tremendous opportunity.
