Concert band wins silver

By JANET DUVAL

They're back and they're winners.

Georgetown District High School's concert band picked up a silver medal at MusicFest Canada in Edmonton last week. The prestigious event at the city's Convention Centre drew 7,500 students and teachers in 178 groups from across Canada, all of whom qualified by earning gold at regional festivals.

"Only 12 schools won gold at Edmonton," says Georgetown music director Eleanor Wallace. "Our silver was really a silver plus. We were on an emotional high. Everyone was so focused, there was so much energy in the room when we performed. I'm very proud of Georgetown."

The five-day festival included clinics, workshops, and performances by some of North America's top professional players. Several Georgetown students enthused over their sessions with trumpeter Bobby Shew, who has played with Woody Herman, Dizzy Gillespie, and Elvis Presley.

Although the daily schedule kept them busy from early morning until late at night, students found time for an afternoon at the West Edmonton Mall, for strolling in 30 degree weather (that's Celsius), and for part of the final Toronto-St. Louis hockey game, before leaving their hotel for another evening concert.

Students spent several months preparing for their trip, not only with intensive rehearsals three times a week, but in fundraisers such as pizza sales and weekend car washes that drew excellent support from the community. Some recovered most of the cost of their airfare and accommodations.

Accompanying the 50 students were Eleanor Wallace, music teacher Joe Quinlan, former student Mark Micklethwaite, and parent Alistair Macewan.

MusicFest concluded with a giant dance for everyone attending. All students proclaimed the week's events an excellent experience. "The only negative was our bedtime was too early," says William Harpur. "We had to settle in by 12:30."

Laurie Duncan with bass clarinet, Mark Peterson on trumpet and Jenna Stuart-Hagge with clarinet make music sitting on their suitcases as they arrived back at GDHS with a silver award.
