KEEPING YOUR YIELD UP

Recently, I have found that many investors are experiencing a similar dilemma. With interest rates sinking steadily and stock markets rising sharply, investors are looking for a way to produce growth of capital without leaving the safety of interest bearing investments and plunging into the stock market.

For those investors, I believe the Global Strategy World Bond Fund presents an excellent opportunity. Global Strategy World Bond Fund invests your funds in a diversified portfolio of international bonds selected from the world's most credit worthy nations and managed on the advice of one of the greatest names in international finance, Rothschilds Investments. Along with the safety that comes with investments in high quality bonds, investors can benefit from high interest rates in some world markets, and make capital gains from strong foreign currencies and declining interest rates. Rothschilds seeks out investments in the right bond markets, and in the right currencies - all over the globe. Currently the fund has substantial positions in both German and French government bonds.

World Bond Fund allows investors an excellent opportunity to diversify their interest bearing investments with a strong view towards safety and capital gain and, is a must for all conservative growth oriented investors.

Further important information about this fund including a short form prospectus may be obtained by contacting the author.

A reminder

Insecticides and herbicides are indiscriminate about what they kill. Mother earth has developed a delicate balance of plant and wildlife, with each dependent on the other for survival. Use caution and restraint when applying these chemicals in your gardens and lawns.

CVCA offers free day Wednesday

The Credit Valley Conservation Authority (CVCA) will hold its first Discover a Conservation Area Day on Wednesday, June 30.

Visitors are invited to explore the Terra Cotta, Belfountain and Orangeville Reservoir conservation areas for the day — free of charge!

"It's a no lose proposition," says Jim Hastings, CVCA supervisor of field operations. "With the kids out of school, we thought it would be a great chance to come out and enjoy one, or all of our parks for the day."

The Terra Cotta Conservation area is a 411-acre site specializing in nature trails, camping, fishing and picnic equipment rentals including barbecues, volleyball, tug of war ropes and kiddy tractor pulls.

The Orangeville Reservoir is a 809-acre property including a large lake complete with beach, great fishing and boat rentals.

Belfountain offers historic sightseeing, botanical gardens, a waterfall and swing bridge.

"We're confident that people will enjoy the parks so much they'll be back for more throughout the summer," says community relations spokesperson Robert Peace. "Even at the regular $2.50 admission price, it's a great deal for a day's entertainment."

For more information on the locations of these conservation areas please call 1-800-668-5557.
