Here and Now exhibits lively art

By JOHN SOMMER
Special to The Independent/Free Press

Here and Now '93, this year's window on the arts in Halton and neighboring regions, sponsored by Re:Vision, a Georgetown arts association, had a rousing start at its opening in the Cultural Centre Gallery Sept. 29.

There was music and wine and an excited crowd viewing 52 exhibits by 37 artists.

John Bartolac, the president of Re:Vision, opened the exhibition by thanking the participating artists, the businesses and citizens who donated the awards, the members of Re:Vision who worked hard to bring the exhibition about, and the distinguished painters Mackay Houstoun (Toronto and Georgetown) and Barry Phillips (Brampton), who selected the exhibition from 92 submitted entries. These two members of the jury have each four of their paintings displayed in the Cultural Centre lobby.

Houstoun announced the award winners. They are: Tim Alberts, with an award donated by Gallery House Sol; Helen Daley with an award donated by Georgetown Photo; Una O'Callaghan, with an award donated by White Rose, Brampton; Gennaro Panacci, with an award donated by Art Effects, Georgetown; Barbara Stephens, with an award donated by Office Magic, Georgetown; and Virginia Wilson, with an award donated by Bruce and Margaret Harding, Georgetown.

Phillips announced the names of six Honorable Mentions. They are: Sarah Delroy, Joan Lowndes, Carol-Ann Michaelson, Joseph Panacci, Dawn Schertzl, and Wilma Stamm'ler.

However, it should be pointed out that the jury was very tough. Only the best works got into the exhibition, and everybody who is a participant has reason to be proud of this fact.

Here are the names of the so far not mentioned participating artists: William Albiez, Shirley Brambley, Gary Brunt, Lyn Barrett-Cowan, Andries De Boer, Janice Gittings, Margaret Grant, Peter Jones, Cathey Laidlaw, Louise Laroche, Susie Lee, Marlene Madole, Joan March, Vallery Mokrytzki, Carol Mooney, Sybil Rampen, Doreen Renner, Robin Symmes, Jo Walterson, Keith Wellstead, Gisela Wittenberg, Susan Ying, P. Zevenhuizen, Paulette Murphy.

Nothing is time-worn in this exhibition, everything is fresh and original. I hope that many visitors to the Cultural Centre will enjoy the exhibition at the Gallery, there until the end of October.
