

Friar changes hands

Beginning January 3 The Towne Friar on Mill St. in Acton will be run by new owners.

Cliff, Ann, Tom and Laurie Evans, who have run the successful fish and chip shop for the past three years, have sold the business to their good friends and longtime Halton Hills residents Bruce, Sandy and their son Carl Caves.

While the Evans know their customers will be in good hands, they are sad to be giving up the business.

"Due to sickness and injuries in our family we have been forced to sell The Towne Friar," said Cliff. "We do this with great sadness. This was not only our dream, but over the last three years we have gotten to really know our customers and consequently have made some valued friendships."

He added they are very appreciative of the Acton and surrounding area residents who have made their business such a success.

The sale of the business came about when Cliff was telling his friend, and fellow Mississauga firefighter Bruce, he had to sell due to illness in the family.

Bruce and his family decided they would take over the business from their friends. Over the past weeks the Evans have been teaching the Caves everything they know about the fish and chip business.

Carl will be the most familiar face at the restaurant, as he will be responsible for the daily operations. But both Sandy and Bruce will also work at The Towne Friar and their other son Brad, currently working toward his business administration degree at the University of Windsor, will do the restaurant's books.

"We are really looking forward to serving the people of Acton," said Bruce. "We plan to continue providing the great service and food the Evans have provided."

The Evans, the owners of The Towne Friar in Acton have sold their business to their friends the Caves. From left, Cliff, Ann and Tom Evans wish the new owners Carl,

Sandy and Bruce Caves all the best in their new business. Everyone is invited to drop by and say good bye to the Evans before they leave on Dec. 23.
