Computer class

Centennial Middle School students (from left) Scott Thurlbeck, Phil Stocks, Michelle Chant and Jennifer McMullen (seated) were among the grade six students who took part in an inquiry project as part of their Integrated Studies course, taught by teachers Jane Whitman and Sue Barrow. In a lab employing 14 computers, the students were required to complete their projects on Hyperstacks, in the Hypercard program, and teachers and students evaluated each other on their presentations. In addition, parents visited the school Wednesday night, so they could view the projects on-screen in the classroom. TED BROWN Independent/Free Press
