

Barney visits

Barney the Purple Dinosaur made a visit to the Georgetown Marketplace Mall to the delight of the hundreds of children who came to greet him. Barney was helping to promote the Waterloo-Wellington Alliance for Animals' Project Jessie program, which rescues abandoned animals from pounds, where if not claimed, would end up in research labs.

DENTURE MISHAPS!

Denture wearers unite! You are not alone! To anyone who at one time or another has had an embarrassing, frustrating, or unfortunate accident or incident with their dentures, I would like to share these light hearted stories.

While working in the denture business for over ten years, I believe I have heard just about everything there is to hear about "denture mishaps". Although each new story somehow tops the one before! It's hard to believe what some people have gone through to rescue their prosthetic pals, left defenselessly falling prey to pets, small children, toilets, and more. For instance, you've heard of "occupational hazards"? Well believe me, when it comes to being on the job and wearing dentures, it can also be quite hazardous to the old pocket book! Like the construction worker who was 15 stories high on scaffolding. He sneezed, and watched helplessly as his upper denture plummeted to the ground! He found the denture in tiny pieces scattered in the dirt. I hope he at least gave it a decent burial!

And speaking of burials, another man, while building his house many years ago, sneezed his denture into the cement while he was pouring the foundation! Talk about giving your house that personal touch!

Have you got a humorous "denture mishap" you'd like to share with other readers? If so, write or phone our office, we'd be glad to share your story, anonymously of course!
