

Theresa Rodobolski of Pictures and Presents on Main St., Georgetown recently presented a cheque for $2,775 to Larry Scott, president of the Georgetown unit of the Canadian Cancer Society. The cheque was the proceeds from Theresa's silent art auction, which was held in December.

Rodobolski heads up Cancer Society fundraising

The Georgetown unit of the Canadian cancer Society has acquired a new fundraising chairperson. Theresa Rodobolski has accepted the position as of January 24, and intends to give the job her best shot.

As with many volunteers for the Canadian Cancer Society, she has her own personal reasons for committing herself to the job.

"I watched my sister-in-law suffer for five years before she died of cancer," says Theresa. "So I wanted to do something. I guess it's my way of helping out if I can."

Theresa has been active in Cancer Society fundraising since 1991, when she took an active part in helping Edgar Thatcher and Victor Hanson of Men Without Hairs in their first Spectacular New Age Vaudeville Show in February of 1991. And she is still helping with the show, donating time and energy to promoting the show.

She later planned the annual silent auction in 1992 at her place of business, Pictures and Presents, where she donated the proceeds to the Cancer Society.

And now she is steering the fundraising activities. With the coming year, Theresa hinted she's investigating the possibility of running a fundraiser with some celebrities. "But it's simply in the planning stage," says Theresa. "Hopefully, I can get it together within the coming year."
