Food for thought

Laura Ellison of Love in Christ Food Bank displayed one person's limit of food for one week - 17 pounds, at a recent open house at the food bank last Tuesday night (Feb. 22) at which local municipal politicians and social services personal were invited to experience the process of applying for food from a food bank. The food bank is always in need of donations and support, and Ellison told those present of the need for sponsors of the school lunch program, in which children are supplied with a lunch at school.

EARLY DENTURES

We don't know how lucky we are today! It's hard to believe the "denture dilemma's" people were in back in the 1800's.
Researches were studying corpses in a local crypt for clues to health in earlier centuries say The Daily Telegraph.

* Scientists say William Laschallas of East London, bankrupt, put a bullet through his temple in 1852 because he couldn't remove his upper denture. Mr. Laschallas's denture was a gold horseshoe - shaped device worth several thousand pounds today. "He must have tried to get it out", said David Whittaker, a specialist in oral medicine. "We certainly couldn't without damaging the skull-because of its accuracy of fit-and, when he failed, took his life in despair." Also, in the 18th and 19th centuries, poor people sold their teeth-which were removed without anesthesia-and the choppers were implanted immediately into rich people with tooth decay or used for dentures!

* A collection of "Waterloo teeth" is on display in the British Dental Association museum in London. The human teeth were so called because they were reputedly removed from the mouths of cadavers, fresh from various battlefields and assembled into dentures. We've come along way baby!

Thanks to Sensi Fred Hanes for the above Submission!
