Residents seek town help

Residents from the new Law Development, Trafalgar Country, were at council Monday night to complain about several things they say the developer has not followed through on as promised when they bought their new homes.

Mike Foley, who lives in the Law townhouse development off Mountainview Rd., led the delegation of two Trafalgar Country residents and one whose property borders the development. Foley said residents of the townhouse development have experienced several problems with Law in the past.

The residents complained that fencing in the area was incomplete or falling down, the water retention pond was not fenced, noise barriers were not up, and nails and glass littered the area's greenbelt.

The residents said they had complained to Law representatives but to no avail.

"It's time to look at who is building in this town," said Foley.

The town's administrative assistant Stephen Thomson said Law Development has been given 10 days to comply to the infractions as spelled out in their agreement with the town.

Thomson said if Law Development doesn't comply the town will use some of the company's funds held by the town to do the work.

IT WAS ONLY A MATTER OF TIME.

Presenting the Wenger Swiss Watch Collection. Now Wenger is on the cutting edge of Swiss watch design too. Created with the same devotion to craftsmanship, the same precision and the same classic beauty you'd expect from the maker of the Genuine Swiss Army Knife. An all-quartz Swiss movement carves out months, days, hours and minutes with an accuracy to a tenth of a second. The rugged sport case and mineral crystal offer water resistance to 100 meters. Hands and numerals are coated with Tritium for clearer night-time illumination. And every Wenger Swiss Watch is backed with a two-year limited warranty as well as a dealer service organization committed to your complete satisfaction.

But hurry. Because time, after all, is certainly of the essence.
