

Break-in upsets Army's plans

Due to the theft of about $7,500 in sound equipment from the Salvation Army Church in Acton, the church won't be able to hold anymore outdoor services this year.

Police report the equipment was stolen from the Mill St. church sometime overnight Sunday and Monday.

According to police the church was entered after glass was broken in the rear door of the building. The storage room was pried open and stereo speakers, microphones, a sound mixer board, and speaker cables were taken.

Captain Larry Jennings, the corps officer at the church, said in a statement released Wednesday that because of the theft the evening service will now have to be held inside the church.

Capt. Jennings said it was "sad to see our community fall to this level, even our churches are being attacked."

"It would seem they knew what they were coming for as most of the items stolen were musical equipment," said Capt. Jennings.

He added it's believed the culprits "may have witnessed our open air services at the IGA parking lot and took note of the equipment used."

Capt. Jennings said police have dusted the church property for fingerprints and descriptions of some of the people who attended the open air services have been passed on to police.

Would-be sailors took to the water earlier this week as Halton Hills Recreation and Parks Department summer sailing camp was held on Fairy Lake in Prospect Park. Campers learned basic techniques and were able to test their skills in small sailboats.
