

WORD ON THE STREET

with Dawn Brown

“How do you believe the teachers’ work to rule is impacting children’s education?”

Jamie Wingate: “I don’t have kids, but I think it would impact parent teacher relationships.”

Harold Magee: “It does affect them, I guess. Teachers are about the money, to me, not about the kids.”

Bill Gibbs: “I don’t think much of teachers in the first place. You end up with teenagers who can’t add and subtract.”

Lisa Benacquista: “I think their [teachers’] hands are tied, but they so as much as they can. They do try, and you have to be creative with kids.”
