

Police launch Drive SAFE campaign in north Halton

Following close cooperation with the Region of Halton and the Towns of Milton and Halton Hills, police officers have been assigned to 30 identified high-risk locations in the area to conduct zero tolerance enforcement during the month of February.

An equal amount of locations have been identified for enforcement in both towns in the Drive SAFE (Safety Awareness for Everyone) campaign.

These locations have been identified through a process that determines the anticipated traffic volume, frequency of collisions, the severity of the collisions and the potential for safety improvement through enforcement.

Regional roads run through each township and typically, these roads accommodate higher volumes of traffic including higher numbers of commercial motor vehicles.

As such regional roads will be targeted by the District Response Unit, which will work with the service's Commercial Motor Vehicle Unit to target aggressive drivers and commercial motor vehicles.

Officers recognize that each town has its own particular traffic concerns and needs for enforcement.

The campaign will seek to address these concerns as the year progresses by conducting an evaluation with Town and Regional staff each month. This evaluation will include complaints received by citizens, engineering studies conducted by town staff and through police analytics.

Locations deemed to present a high level of risk to road users will receive targeted enforcement.

This partnership supports Halton Region's Comprehensive Road Safety Action Plan (CROSAP), which seeks to ensure the safe and efficient operation of the road network.

Halton Regional Police Service is committed to reducing dangerous and aggressive driving behaviours that put all road users at risk. Throughout the course of the year officers from the Community mobilization Bureau will seek community partnerships in order to achieve the goal of improved road safety within the Towns of Milton and Halton Hills.

If any citizen would like to report a traffic concern in Halton Hills they can call 905-878-5511 or visit the Halton Police website and submit an online traffic complaint at <http://www.haltonpolice.ca/PRC/Pages/TrafficComplaints.aspx>

The promotion was part of a contest being run from December 15th to January 25th. Benjamin is planning to be married in June and the winning will certainly help to go towards the costs.
