Georgetown Hospital welcomes new obstetricians

The wait is over.

Babies are being born once again at Georgetown Hospital after several months of diverting births to other area facilities, thanks to the hiring of two new obstetricians/gynecologists late last month.

The Town of Halton Hills utilized its Physician Recruitment Program to attract Dr. Monica Torres and Dr. James Ade-Conde with each receiving a $5,000 grant and a $10,000 interest-free loan repayable over five years. The funds can be used for the purchase of equipment or to set up an office.

Both will have privileges at Georgetown Hospital, working together with its Obstetrics staff, while also running the Halton Hills Womens Health Centre, located at 118 Mill St. Suite 202.

The Town has experienced a recent shortage of obstetricians and the addition of these two practitioners goes a long way to meeting the community's needs, said Mayor Rick Bonnette.

Dr. Torres was born in Medellin, Colombia and immigrated to Canada 11 years ago after living in the U.S for a few years before returning to Colombia to earn her medical degree.

It was one of the best decisions I've ever made. I've never looked back since coming to Canada and have been blessed in abundance since immigrating to the Great White North, said Dr. Torres, 41.

I feel privileged to have been chosen to start a practice in Halton Hills and hope to call Georgetown my home for years to come.

Dr. Ade-Conde, 46, began his undergraduate education at the University of Lagos, Nigeria and graduated with a Bachelor's degree in Medicine and Surgery in 1996. He continued his studies in the United Kingdom and completed his higher specialist training in the Republic of Ireland before moving to Canada.

Prior to his move to Halton Hills, Dr. Ade-Conde practiced in Chatham, Ontario and in British Columbia. He is also an adjunct professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Schulich School of Medicine of the University of Western Ontario.

He has four children, three of whom were born in Ireland, and his wife Tola operates a psychiatry practice.
