

9 year old cuts hair for cancer

Youngster Andrew Reitmeier wanted to do something to help those battling cancer after watching his grandmother endure two bouts with the disease, so a couple of years ago he decided to grow his hair long.

The target of insults and bullying during that time, the nine-year-old Georgetown resident finally had his locks shorn at Salon Marcel by proprietor Marcel Godreau earlier this month, with Cancer Assistance Services of Halton Hills the beneficiary.

Donations are still being accepted. $210 has been collected at Salon Marcel and an unknown amount through the CASHh website cancerassistance.org

Reitmeier's departed hair has been passed on to Pantene Beautiful Lengths in order to be used to make wigs for cancer victims.

GRAND RE-OPENING: On hand for the official re-opening of Prospect Park in Acton last week were (from left) Matt Gibson, Halton Hills Mayor Rick Bonnette, Annetrista Absalom, who proposed the idea for playground equipment designed for children in wheelchairs, Erin Gibson and her three-year-old daughter Piper, who is developmentally delayed and loves the new Spinnee Round-A-Bout, her big sister Kaeliegh and Ward 1 Councillor Mike Albano.
