

7-Eleven in Georgetown shutting doors for good

After almost 20 years on Mountainview Rd. South, a gas station and convenience store combination is closing its doors for good.

In July, the 7-Eleven landmark will be saying goodbye.

Andrew Whittaker, who has been the manager since last May, says the store isn't getting enough business, and that's been a reoccurring theme for a while.

We're not nearly busy enough, he said. We are not where we need to be.

According to Whittaker, the store has always been barely making it by, starting at its conception over 15 years ago, contrary to popular belief.

ago, contrary to popular belief.

Because of the store not reaching the numbers it needs to, the corporate office has decided to shut it down.

With its closing, Whittaker and the rest of the 7-Eleven employees are sad to see it go, and thank the public for making the store a staple for Georgetown South.

We're sorry to see it go, me most of all, he said.

We really enjoyed our time here. All of the people that come in here are great, we know the regulars by name. So we're sorry to leave.

The store will be open until July 17.
