

Town installs new lights on rural roads

The Town has installed new lights in three rural intersections to improve visibility and enhance safety.

The new Light Emitting Diode (LED) lights have been installed at:

- 25 Side Road/Dublin Line
- 17 Side Road/Sixth Line
- 10 Side Road/Fourth Line

The Town has an ongoing commitment to make our roads as safe as possible. The installation of these new lights will enhance visibility in these rural intersections," said Mayor Rick Bonnette.

In addition, the lights use LED bulbs which are proven to be more energy efficient.

The new light installations are part of the Town's Rural Road safety initiative.

In 2017, another light will be added to the intersection of 22 Side Road and Dublin Line. Additional intersections will be identified for 2017 installations in the near future.

HLF unveils new website

The Halton Learning Foundation has a new look, but its commitment to helping Halton students overcome financial barriers to education remains the same.

Approximately 10 per cent of the 60,000 students of the Halton District School Board (HDSB) live at or below the poverty line, which presents barriers to their education.

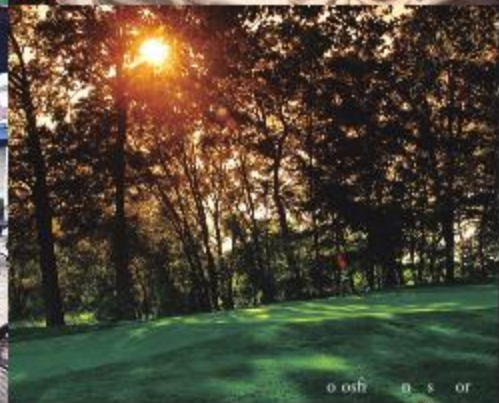

While the Halton Learning Foundation is well-known within Halton schools, there is less awareness of HLF within the wider community.

Many people either don't know about the Halton Learning Foundation, or they have the impression we have something to do with tutoring," says Lesley Mansfield, executive director of HLF. "In reality, our goal is to help eliminate financial barriers to education that exist for about 6,000 elementary and secondary school students in Burlington, Milton, Halton Hills and Oakville.

The Halton Learning Foundation recently undertook a brand redesign to better communicate how they help elementary and high school students across Halton.
