PICK A COLOUR: The innovation and technology showcased in the design of the Ford GT is mirrored in the colour and material choices for the all-new supercar. Ford designers used colour strategically throughout to highlight areas of innovation and to enhance the aesthetic of efficiency and performance. We walked a fine line with the colour and materials in this application of carbon fibre traditionally used as a decorative element in performance vehicles is employed as a structural component in the Ford GT, and serves as a visual anchor of the supercar s lightweight construction. In the cabin, carbon fibre is visible across the instrument panel, while different top coating options for the exterior allow customers to choose from gloss, matte or Shadow Black paint to cover the exposed carbon fiber trim. The options provide for a more personalized look and feel to the car whether the customer is looking to express a pure appreciation for racing, a solid performance aesthetic or a more aggressive attitude in general. For the first time at Ford, colour combinations include customizable Brembo brake calipers. In addition to the standard six-piston, monobloc anodized black calipers with carbon ceramic rotors, upgrades include silver, blue, orange and red.
