Q

What do I do about my property tax bill when I am selling my home?

A

In the province of Ontario, the property tax bill is a lien on the property. This means that the property tax bill is a debt against the property. When you sell the property, the property tax bill must be paid in full before the property can be sold.

For the purpose of the property tax bill, the property is considered to be sold on the date of the closing. This means that the property tax bill for the period of time between the closing and the end of the tax year must be paid by the seller. The property tax bill for the period of time before the closing must be paid by the buyer.

If you are selling your home, you should contact your real estate agent to ensure that the property tax bill is paid in full before the closing. Your real estate agent should also ensure that the property tax bill is paid in full before the closing.
