Nurse on board for Rio

Cristy Nurse of Georgetown and her Canadian women's eight rowing teammates have to wait until this morning (Thursday) to get another shot at competing in Saturday's final for a possible medal at the Summer Olympics in Brazil.

The 29-year-old Nurse was an alternate with the women's eight in 2012 when the Canadians earned silver medals in London and it appears the path to the podium will be tougher in Rio. Canada's boat placed third in Monday's qualifying heats and was forced to race in the repechage (second-chance qualifier) on Wednesday, which was postponed until Thursday due to high winds.

Another local resident, long-time women's cycling coach Denise Kelly of Glen Williams, is also in Rio for the Games with Canada's road team. Edmonton's Tara Whitten wasn't far off the lead in Wednesday's time trial, placing seventh. Kelly, 56, also served as a coach at the London 2012 Games.
