Red Door Gallery examines Wayward

Red Door Gallery's new show features Toronto artist Anam Feerasta, who was born and raised in Karachi, Pakistan, and has spent most of her life experiencing, observing and questioning the role of women in South Asian culture.

Defined by men, for men, these stereotypical roles shape the identity of women, who are often not able to break away from the burden of expectations. Anam's work, primarily acrylic on canvas, depicts the stories of these women. It portrays their struggles to overcome obstacles deeply embedded in the social and cultural fabric of South Asia.

Switching between representational art and abstract techniques, Anam explores ideas of identity, objectification, marginalization, and what it really means to be a South Asian woman juxtaposed against the zeitgeist of western individualism and gender equality.

The show will run at the Red Door Gallery until Sept. 14.

Join the Gallery for the opening reception on Saturday (Sept. 3) from 6-8 p.m.
