52 Mill St. East

Circa 1852

This property at the south-east corner of Mill Street and John Street, now home to Acton Discount Variety and upstairs tenants, was once home to a cozy, frame house owned by retired Acton pharmacist A.T. Brown, and his wife Mina. The house, built of barn timbers, was the first lot sold in the Adams subdivision.

PAST PAGES

TEN YEARS AGO
• A fundraiser for the family of Acton murder victim Raymond Getty brought in $1,868 for a trust fund set up after the teen was shot and killed by another teen who was visiting at his father's Danville Avenue house on New Year Eve day.
• An Acton man, bruised and scratched when a German Shepherd with a "propensity to bite" attacked him, said he was worried about public safety after the dog went missing from his owner's Frederick Street residence.

FIVE YEARS AGO
• With a tidy profit, the largest ever gate and rave reviews, the 95th edition of the Acton Fall Fair was a resounding success with a net income of $32,864, more than double the previous year, and 16,000 people through the gates.
• The average Halton Hills homeowner will pay an additional $90 on the Town portion of their property tax bill this year if Town Council approves what Mayor Rick Bonnette called a "fair budget for these economic times."
