Town Digest

SIGN POLLUTION Complaining of “more signs than dandelions” – especially on hydro poles in the rural area – Ward Two Councillor Bryan Lewis called for an illegal sign clean-up and crack-down at council on Monday. “Anyone (needing) painting, internet services, dirt – do you want aluminum? I would say, just drive our streets and you can find signage to that effect,” Lewis said, noting it appears to be “many of those from outside” the community who are illegally posting signs. Lewis asked for a clean-up and for staff to enforce existing sign bylaws.

PROUDLY PINNED

Three Town employees with 95 years of service to Halton Hills between them were recently honoured for their dedicated long service to the Town. Acton’s Kathy Levere, now a customer service licensing co-ordinator, received her 35-year service pin, and is the Town’s longest serving employee. Circulation department staffer Christine Otto received her 30-year pin, along with Mayor Rick Bonnette.
