Local educators speak

“We have to know curriculum, and know where we’re going, but also be hand-in-hand with the students to get there...that’s a real shift, to allow yourself to be one of the big learners in the room, and then your school is a learning community.”
Robert Little Principal - Carolyn Reist

“Leadership is a big thing for us – getting kids to take on leadership, throughout the school, whether it is in sports, intramural, or student council, student athletic council and reading buddies.”
MSB Principal - Lisa Serebrin

“We’re still teaching reading, writing and arithmetic...(but) kids are very technology-oriented – everything is technology orientated – so we have to meet the kids in their world if we want to reach them.”
Limehouse VP - Mark Lyall

“I want to create a great school where everyone feels safe where they belong, and a school that we can all feel proud of, in terms of our community and our students and what we’re accomplishing.”
Acton High Principal - Darlene White

“This year promises to be an exciting one as we work together - home, school and parish - to inspire our students to develop the self-discipline and commitment necessary to reach their potential as citizens and lifelong learners.”
St. Joseph Principal - Sonia Bien
