

Missing Acton man found

A 65-year-old diabetic man Acton man, missing for almost 36 hours, was found "safe and sound" in Orangeville before 10 a.m. on Wednesday morning.

Halton Detective/Sergeant Murray Drinkwater said Robert Rusby was found sleeping outside.

Rusby was last seen by his wife at 12:30 on Monday afternoon. His car was found Tuesday morning at an Orangeville car dealer, where police determined he did not have business. While few details have been released, the joint search included Halton and Orangeville police, the OPP, the Georgian Bay Search and Rescue squad with help from helicopters and search dogs.

Rusby is a Type 2, insulin-dependent diabetic who requires daily insulin injections, and he did not have his medication with him. Orangeville police said as a precaution, Rusby was taken to hospital for examination.
