Acton Curling Club co-hosts the Dominion Ontario Championships

Members of the ten best women's curling teams in Ontario clapped as they paraded behind a piper onto the ice at Acton Curling Club on Friday night for the opening ceremony of the Dominion Ontario Curling Club Championships. Acton co-hosted the weekend event with the Milton Curling Club.

In a traditional toast to the piper, 78th Highlander Steve Jenkins of Milton, opening ceremony officials tossed back shots and welcomed the curlers to Acton. Club President Madelene Reed had high praise for 35 Acton Club volunteers who would provide great ice and good food during the weekend.

As the teams lined the ice, Leigh Armstrong, with Dominion Insurance Company, threw the first ceremonial rock, giving Acton Curling Club members Dianne Trask and Marg Aitken a chance to sweep hard and help the stone over the hog line. After the ceremony, Doug Bakes, executive director of the Ontario Curling Association, said ice quality and accommodations are key when choosing a location for the provincials. He said they hope to return to the Acton Club for next year's Dominion Ontario Curling Championships.

No local clubs were in competition, which raised $10,000 for the Ontario Curling Association and its charity of choice, the Canadian Paraplegic Association of Ontario. In the ladies final, Jody McCutcheon High Park Curling Club needed an extra end for an 8-7 victory over Ruth Alexander Highland Golf and Country Club London. In the men's final, Greg Balsdon Richmond Hill Curling Club took Pat Ferris Grimbsy Curling Club 9-1. The winners represent Ontario at the Dominion Canadian Curling Club Championships in Richmond, B.C. from November 21 to 28.
