United Way of Halton Hills launches 2016 campaign

The United Way of Halton Hills has set a goal of $400,000 for the 2016 Campaign.

The goal is higher than last year, as the fact remains that social needs are rising each year, everywhere. Halton Hills is not immune to that. While we are fortunate to live in such a great community, we need to come together and help those around us facing struggles in their life.

Last year, United Way of Halton Hills undertook a Needs Assessment of the Halton Hills community. This assessment identified the present and emerging social needs in our area. The needs identified as most important include the following: Transportation, affordable housing, individual and family supports, employment and education, mental health services and structural needs of service providers. In a growing community, it is not surprising that our social sector is facing challenges.

In the meantime, United Way of Halton Hills continue to work for the betterment of our community and kicked off the 2016 Campaign at the Georgetown Farmers Market on Sept. 24.
