

HILLSVIEW REPORT

By: Julie Conroy

Tickets are now on sale for the next social dinner on Wednesday, November 16. The cut-off date will be Monday, November 14 at 4 p.m. It will celebrate all things British. On the menu is Sheppard's pie and a surprise dessert. Norm Mason will be entertaining us.

Hank Walsma won the birthday draw for a free pedicure at Georgetown Downtown Spa and Cathy Forbes was the lucky winner of the October Pamper basket. There won't be a monthly draw until January as we have lots of opportunities to win many prizes over the next month including the penny table draw or the beautiful basket created by Marion Storey and her daughter Janet. It's loaded with goodies and includes a beautiful porch lantern. They will be drawn at our Christmas Fair on Saturday, November 26.

To make the Fair a great success we need help from all our members whether by baking for the tea table and the bake table or donating items for the tea. There is a list of items needed for the tea at the reception desk. Our members are always very generous when it comes to helping.

Last week was very busy with bus trips. On Tuesday a coach full of members and friends went to Niagara to enjoy the Fallsview Casino. (This was the last trip to Fallsview until the Spring). On Wednesday, another bus went to the Orangeville Theatre to see "Ghost Island Light" following lunch at Mrs. Mitchells.

On Friday mornings Florence Riehl is at the travel desk to answer all your questions. She is already thinking Spring and planning a trip to see the Blue Jays in May and a mystery trip with a Valentine theme in February.

We have our thinking caps on trying to come up with a great design for the Santa Claus Parade float again this year. The theme is "Christmas around the World", so that will be a challenge.

Catherine Hunt had the only mooner while playing bid euchre on November 3.

Joan Bateman won the weekly 50/50 draw. She will receive a cheque for $65.50.

Lunch on Friday, November 18 will be soup and sandwiches, always a favourite especially now the cooler weather has arrived.

Halton District School Board receives funding for two new Milton schools

Today the Ontario government announced funding for two new schools as part of a $77 million announcement in new school construction in the Halton District School Board. The announcement was made by Halton MPP Indira Naidoo-Harris at P.L. Robertson Public School in Milton.

Both schools will be located in southwest Milton to assist with accommodation pressures in this growing community. The elementary school will be built for 776 students and the secondary school will accommodate 1,200 students. The elementary school is anticipated to open in September 2018 and the high school is anticipated to open in September 2019.

"This is great news for students in Milton," said Stuart Miller, Director of Education for the Halton District School Board. "We're grateful to the Ontario Ministry of Education for recognizing the growth and challenges we're having in this part of the Board. These new, state-of-the-art schools will serve as wonderful learning spaces for students as we do our best to help them to learn, grow and succeed."

"We are very pleased to begin planning for these two new schools in the growing community of Milton," said Kelly Amos, Chair, Halton District School Board. "The addition of these schools will help us continue to provide safe, accessible and engaging learning environments for our students."

Across Ontario, 28 new schools are being built and 23 schools are being renovated as part of the government announcement. Also on hand at the announcement in Milton were representatives from the Halton Catholic District School Board, Conseil scolaire de district catholique Centre-Sud, and Conseil scolaire Viamonte.
