

Stewart looking forward to Christmas

Kathryn said she has a great relationship with the SickKids Foundation and has made several public-speaking engagements on the hospital's behalf.

She has agreed to speak in front of the foundation's board of directors at its meeting this month, while also turning other appearances down. Getting her picture taken with Phil Kessel and the Stanley Cup in the summer after the Pittsburgh Penguins claimed the championship was fun, but more so for her hockey-playing younger brother Geoff.

(Kathryn) just wants to be like any other 13-year-old, added Heather.

She does it for SickKids because we can't give them the money they deserve, but she can help them with these functions to raise the funds to do what they do.

There are other dilemmas on her mind these days, such as choosing either Georgetown or

Christ the King for high school next year, and what her hair will be like for the Grade 8 graduation picture.

Quick-witted with a sharp sense of humour with Geoff often the target of her barbs she maintains a positive outlook, pointing out that there's a Wendy's restaurant beside Credit Valley Hospital.

Yes, she would like to spend a half an hour before school each morning working on her hair, and plans on attending law school at Queen's University like many other family members have.

For now though, Kathryn's looking forward to Christmas after having to spend it in past years in the hospital.

I like the feeling of Christmas not necessarily all the presents just the atmosphere of it with the trees and the lights and decorating. Hopefully we'll have snow this year, because last year we didn't have any on the ground. Everyone just seems a lot nicer at that time of year.
