

Georgetown man charged with impaired driving

A driving complaint from a concerned citizen led to the arrest of a man charged with impaired by drug last Thursday (Dec. 29) afternoon in Georgetown.

Halton Regional Police responded to a call at around 3:15 p.m. of a grey Toyota that was all over the road and had twice struck the curb in the area of Maple Ave. and Mountainview Rd. N., according to the police report.

An officer attended the address of the registered owner on Atwood Ave. and soon after the suspect vehicle arrived in the driveway, police said.

The accused exited the vehicle and spoke with the officer, who reported smelling a strong odour of alcohol.

Stating that he was on a prescription drug for stomach issues, the suspect mispronounced several words and was unsteady while standing, leaning on the hood of the vehicle for support, the officer said.

Following an investigation, Olusegun Adekunle, 59, of Georgetown, was arrested and charged with impaired operation of a motor vehicle.

Police say there was a verbal confrontation as the youth left. Police say the teen left and returned with four other males who forced their way into the rear of the home and attacked the victims.

They fled before police arrived.

A short time later police identified the teen, who was arrested without incident outside his Milton home.

The 16-year-old, who can't be named under the Youth Justice Act, has been charged with aggravated assault, assault, weapons dangerous, break and enter, commit an indictable offence (aggravated assault) and mischief under $5,000.
