Halton police searching for Toronto fraudster on the lam

The Halton Regional Police Service is asking for the public's assistance in locating a Toronto man facing numerous charges including fraud.

In a release sent Friday (Jan. 6), the 3 District Burlington Offender Management Unit said it's searching for Andrew Lawson, 57, after the accused was charged with allegedly defrauding a victim of more than $5,000 in personal savings and investments.

Police also allege Lawson also stole in excess of an additional $5,000 while holding Power of Attorney over the unnamed victim's finances.

At a November 2016 court appearance to answer those charges, HRPS alleges Lawson assaulted a Court Officer and was subsequently charged with assault before being released.

The accused failed to appear for his next court appearance and his whereabouts are currently unknown to police.

Lawson is facing numerous charges including Fraud Over $5,000, Theft by Power of Attorney, Assault Peace Officer, Fail to Comply with Recognizance and Fail to Appear in Court. A warrant has been issued for his arrest.

ANDREW LAWSON

Lawson is described as 5-foot-10, 230 pounds with grey hair and green eyes. He is known to frequent Burlington, Oakville, Niagara Falls, Toronto and surrounding areas.

Police are asking anyone who may have witnessed this person to contact Det. Const. Bulbrook from the Burlington Criminal Investigations Bureau at 905-878-5511 ext. 2346.
