Town changes council start times

By Kathryn Boyle

As of Jan. 16, Halton Hills council will be starting its regular council meetings a little bit earlier.

In the past, council meetings have commenced at 6:30 p.m. Sometimes, closed session has begun around 3:30 p.m. and reconvened into the regular meeting at 6:30 p.m. Now, council meetings will start at 4 p.m.

It started as a report to council in the fall of last year, Renee Brown at the town explained. Council had the decision to remain at 6:30 p.m. or to begin at 4 p.m.

If the regular council session includes a public meeting or a high-interest topic, the meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. to be more accessible to those who wouldn't otherwise be able to attend.

In a year, council will revisit the topic to see whether or not the new time is working.

Residents interested in attending council meetings should check the town's website for the correct time, as it may be subject to change.
