Molly ready to take your place beside the fire

Eight-year-old tortoiseshell cat Molly loves to relax and is not very needy. Submitted photo

Molly is an eight-year-old tortoiseshell cat that is ready to go home. While resting in a climber, she likes to purr and meow. Last December, another tortoiseshell named Lucy was adopted at 10 years old, and staff are hopeful the right family will come along to adopt Molly.

Molly was left outside her owners house one day with no food or water. She is declawed and was frightened fending for herself in this manner.

Neighbours took her in but they had a multi-cat household. Molly's hair was falling out, and her caretakers thought it was to do with the multi-cat household, but it was actually falling out because of some painful mats.

UCHS saw she needed help with her coat and she gets regular brushing and is now dematted. She is a little rotund but nothing that cannot be rectified in the love and comfort of a new home.

Staff feel she would be easy to look after especially if she can find a warm spot by a sunlit window or a cozy fireplace.

Her new owners can give her a brush, especially around her head and neck, which she enjoys. She will come to you to look for affection and chin rubs but she is not a very needy cat.

To meet Molly, call 519-833-2287 or e.mail info@uppercredit.com and ask for Molly, the Torti.

NHKR: Ivy ready to make the big move

Tibby is a joy to be around and is ready to spend some quality time with a new family. Submitted photo

NHKR accepted Tibby into the rescue knowing she had a severely broken back leg, also knowing we had a foster to provide the care she would require.

After orthopedic surgery utilizing wires and a plate, five weeks of cage rest and a week on a leash, Tibby declared herself healed. A veterinarian examination and x-ray confirmed she was ready for new adventures.

There are no visible signs of her injury and Tibby is once again a happy cat.

Tibby is a petite young cat with a beautiful sleek coat to match her pleasing personality. Equally playful and affectionate, she enjoys a game of fetch and when tired she curls up beside her foster family for some cuddles or a nap.

Tibby trails her family throughout the house but will also entertain herself batting toys about or lounging on window sills gazing outdoors. She enjoys interacting with people and will engage her family in conversation, especially when she has a request.

To express her displeasure she vocalizes and trots away, only to return for more attention. Because of her pleasant personality her foster family call her the tiny gem.

In her foster home, Tibby is tolerant of the other cats and a friendly dog, but shows little interest in interacting with them. She would enjoy being an only cat or in a home with older or passive pets.

Tibby indicates no desire to return outdoors and wants to remain a house cat, perhaps a pampered house cat.

NHKR has young cats available for adoption Saturday, Jan. 21 at Pet Valu North, 235 Guelph St. from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Tibby and Tiger Lily are available for adoption at Pet Valu 375 Mountainview Rd. S. from 2-4 p.m.

The $160 adoption fee covers spay/neuter, age appropriate vaccinations, microchip, parasite treatments and a free bag of food.
