Church hosts annual Local Artist's Benefit concert

By: Les Schmidt

Knox Presbyterian Church in Acton held their Local Artist's Benefit Concert this past Saturday, January 14. The evening had a wide range of interesting and local talent, something for just about everyone. Featured artist Marcel van Holden, a tenor, provided a number of classical voice presentations. Comedian Chris Miller gave everyone attending a chuckle with his "Dart Players Act," and violinist Sasha Daleman, accompanied by Jennifer Culpepper, had the crowd entranced with their instrumental duet.

Altogether, there were over a dozen local artists' works presented including: voice, comedy, and instrumental acts as well as, juggling, dance, literature, paintings, and photography. For many of those in the audience, it was surprising to find out what their neighbours have been up to and how talented they are at what they do.

Organizers expressed a special thanks to No Frills, Sobeys, and Giant Tiger for their support, as well as to Bob Jeffries, Kevin Hazzard and Knox Presbyterian Church who contributed to and helped to organize this event.
