Halton Hills youth invited to Talent Quest 2017 Sunday

The Royal Academy of Arts and Education at 93 Main St. S. is hosting Georgetown's first ever talent competition and live show, dubbed Talent Quest 2017.

The focus of the show is to celebrate the unique talents of youth in the community. Giving them opportunities to showcase their talents is vital as it builds self esteem and future opportunities for success.

Founders Sabrina Corker and Connie Ward are looking for musicians, singers, dancers, magicians, ventriloquists, comedians or any other unique and entertaining acts.

Auditions for Talent Quest 2017 are happening this Sunday, May 7, at Mold-Masters SportsPlex. Youth living in Georgetown, Acton, Limehouse or Erin/Hillsburgh ages 5-17 can register their unique talent audition by going online at www.royal-academy.ca and clicking on the Talent Quest link. The top 20 scoring final acts will be chosen to participate in the live show happening June 25 at the John Elliott Theatre in Georgetown. The grand prize winner will receive $1,000 in cash.

Madison Davis, 14, and Dean Veneruz, 16, will be performing musical numbers for Talent Quest 2017 auditions on May 7.
