GLIC begins weekly improv workshop

By Sam Hancock
Special to The IFP

Starting May 17, at 7:30 p.m., GLIC will run a weekly summer drop-in for new and experienced improvisers.

The goal is to have fun while working on some of the basics of improv. For those with experience, it's an opportunity to brush up on the basics, while sharing your enthusiasm for the art form with newbies.

Improv is the fine art of making up scenes without a script. Improv is a great way to help you:

- learn how to think fast on your feet
- build your confidence
- improve your public speaking skills
- create life-long friendships

GLIC's Drop-in Wednesday Workshops run until June 28. Then GLIC will begin rehearsing in July for their end-of-summer show in August. This show could star YOU!! Come out May 17 at 7:30 to the GLT Studio at 33 Stewarttown Rd. to find out more about GLIC's summer plans.

To become a member, and join the Wednesday night event, it costs $25.
