

60-PER-CENT FAILURE RATE IN CMV INSPECTION: Const. Pat Martin of the Halton Regional Police thoroughly examines the undercarriage of a truck and trailer during a Commercial Motor Vehicle inspection recently at the Mold-Masters SportsPlex parking lot in Georgetown. Faulty brakes, insecure cargo and failure to have an annual inspection were among the most common violations found during the latest commercial vehicle safety blitz. Police conducted a pair of targeted inspections one in Milton and another in Georgetown in which 22 unsafe vehicles were pulled off the road. The Halton Hills blitz on June 1 resulted in 54 charges laid and 10 of 18 vehicles brought in for inspection yanked off the road. Twenty-five officers from across the region worked with the OPP, Town of Halton Hills staff and members of the College of Trades to conduct the enforcement blitz. A similar enforcement exercise took place the previous day in Milton, which had a similar failure rate as in Halton Hills at about 60 per cent.
