

Local artist to showcase work at annual Art in the Park

A local artist has been marking the world with her artwork and in August will showcase her work at the annual Art in the Park in Oakville.

Stephanie Rodgers, 22, graduated from Georgetown District High School in 2013 and attended Brock University for a concurrent BA in integrated studies and bachelor of education for art.

Rodgers is currently investigating the mark-making process using acrylic paint and other mediums, and focuses on the complex layering of rich patterns.

Her most recent works have been influenced by her travels within Italy as she explores the organic natural patterns found within nature, while combining images of human-made forms of architecture.
