

Farmers' markets and peach galettes

We've got a quick and easy dessert for you this week. There should be peaches available this week and next (Gerry spoke to the farmers at the market last week to confirm!) So now's the time to make it. However, if you happen to miss peach season, this recipe is so simple and versatile, you can change up the fruit easily - try using apples and cherries, or pears and apricots, or leave out the sugar (and flour and cinnamon) and make it a savoury tart, using roasted, cubed butternut squash mixed with some fresh garden herbs and cooked chestnuts!

What's Cookin'

And speaking of farmers' markets - if you haven't yet been to one this year (yes, indeed, there are people out there who do not go to the market every week), make it a point to get out there soon. A trip to

● See FARMERS, page 22

Ingredients

- 1 sheet butter puff pastry, thawed
- 6-8 peaches, sliced (skins on or off - your choice)
- 1 cup fresh bing cherries, pitted and halved
- Half cup sugar
- 3 tbsp flour
- Half tsp cinnamon
- Pinch coarse salt
- 2 tbsp butter
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 tbsp coarse white sugar

Method

1. In a bowl, mix peaches and cherries.
2. In a separate bowl, blend sugar, flour, cinnamon and salt. Stir into fruit, gently.
3. Lay puff pastry on a cookie sheet, lined with parchment paper.
4. Pile fruit mixture on pastry, leaving 1-2 inches clear all around.
5. Brush the exposed pastry with the egg.
6. Dot the filling with bits of the butter.
7. Fold the pastry sides over the fruit, overlapping, but allowing fruit to still be visible. Brush the pastry with remaining egg. Sprinkle the entire pastry with the coarse sugar.
8. Bake in a preheated 425 F. (220 C) oven for 30-40 minutes, until golden.
