Statistics Canada's latest data dump from the 2016 census provides a glimpse into the state of housing in Halton Region.

On Wednesday, Oct. 25, the Government of Canada published its sixth release of statistics gleaned from last year's long-form census, this time focusing on housing, immigration and ethnocultural diversity and Aboriginal Peoples. The data showed a total of 192,980 private dwellings across the region, with Burlington leading the way with 71,375 dwellings of all types in 2016. Oakville followed with 66,270, with Milton and Halton Hills coming in with 34,260 and 21,080 total households, respectively.

Among Halton's four major municipalities, Milton and Hal-
