The Town of Halton Hills unveiled its newest public park and play area recently on Hidden Park Trail near the Gellert Centre in Georgetown.

Mayor Rick Bonnette was joined by councillors Clark Somerville, Jane Fogal, Bob Inglis, Ann Lawlor and Michael Albano on Oct. 3 for the official unveiling.

"This parkette is another example of why our community ranks so highly in terms of quality of life," said Mayor Bonnette. "Staff consulted with the community and then worked with local companies to build a beautiful space. My congratulations to everyone who was involved."

According to the release, the $220,000 project includes a number of amenities aimed at both children and local recreational enthusiasts. The new park connects to the Gellert Community Centre trail system and overlooks a nearby storm water pond.

"The Hidden Lake Trail Parkette leverages its location with the surrounding features and green space," added the town release. "Strategic berms and planting frame the park with the surrounding residential neighbourhood."

"Public consultation was integral to designing a space that met the needs and desires of the local community with the high response rate indicative of residents' interest in the project."

According to the town, resident input led directly to the inclusion of a large open lawn space, a basketball half court and four swings. The children's playground also includes a climbing net, a first in Halton Hills.
