GLT's upcoming The Studio Shows to go Greek

By ALLAN VISSERPLEIN Georgetown Little Theatre

For 53 years, the Georgetown Little Theatre has been creating works of theatre for the Halton Region and area. This tradition of community theatre has been passed down through generations since the time of the Greeks.

The Festival Dionysia was a theatrical festival in ancient Greece that celebrated the harvest and humanity. The competition took place over the course of six days (three devoted to tragedy, and three to comedy) and and after choosing a winner, they ended with a feast and a celebration

The GLT Studio Shows have brought their own custom of putting together more challenging shows than you might find in a main-stage performance, and have highlighted both established pieces as well as work from up and coming and local playwrights.

For two weekends in September, these two festivals will be com-

The Studio Shows: Gone Greek! takes a page from the Ancients, and finds GLT hosting a play competition in the style of the Athenians. With seven plays, six directors and 12 actors, there's a little something for everyone.

At the end of every night, patrons are encouraged to vote for which show they think should win the mystery prize at the end of the festival's run on September 21.

There will also be a talk-back held at the end of each night; the audience is invited to stay, give their opinion and ask questions of the featured director and cast.

The Studio Shows will be held September 12-14 at the Georgetown Little Theatre's Studio, 33 Stewarttown Rd. and Sept. 19-21 at the Acton Town Hall Centre, 19 Willow St.

All performances start at 7:30 p.m., tickets are $10. For more information, contact 905-877-3422, or dontcutmeinhalf@gmail.com
