Homeowners Corner- Tips on Saving Energy

#1. Understand your project

A heat loss calculation for your home is key before you begin any furnace replacement project. You can identify your comfort requirements and then determine the right solution.

Have a heat-loss calculation performed by a recognized professional to determine the size of furnace or boiler that will heat your home most efficiently. Cost is a key consideration but remember there's an appropriately-sized system for every space. You don't need to pay extra for a system that provides more than your home really needs.

#2. Save with a high-efficient furnace

Furnaces of the past, used a fuel valve that was either completely open or closed, like a light switch. The new modulating furnace is a new approach to heating your home that allows more efficient use of fuel, and more consistent comfort. A high-efficient furnace opens to any level between 40 and 100 per cent, working more like a dimmer switch.
