Nia Jam raises $1,300 for new Georgetown library

The Nia Jam fundraiser for the Halton Hills Public Library held January 27 at Rampulla's Martial Arts raised more than $1,300.

Organized by local Nia teacher Mary Baxter, who also works at the Georgetown branch, the event drew 30 dancers. Nia is a fun and energizing movement class that combines martial arts, dance arts and healing arts.

Local Nia teachers Lee Anne Knight and Denis Karda and Nia students, Renata Luisetto and Jeannine D'Entremont-Farrar helped plan the event. The focus was "exploring your world within", which coincided with the library's slogan "a world within our doors."

Nia teacher Val McGiverin said, "The library and Nia have much in common, both offer a calm sanctuary to relax on one hand, yet the joy, excitement and curiosity of exploring new worlds on the other."

"Some people think the library is all about books but it is much more. It's a vital lively, space where everyone in the community is welcome and has access to information. A thriving library is a sign of a thriving, healthy community," said Baxter.
